

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a pressure-welded semiconductor device where at least one semiconductor element is disposed inside a casing, a buffer conductive layer including conductive carbons is disposed at pressure-welded portions between first casing-side electrodes and element-side electrodes disposed on a first main surface and at pressure-welded portions between second casing-side electrodes and element-side electrodes disposed on a second main surface.